

Berkshire, Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire Young Solicitors' Group presents

Social networking: when your private life becomes public

Social networking pervades society, with people publicising their private lives more than ever before, and lawyers are no different. But what does it mean for you, and your clients?

In a wide-reaching presentation, local solicitors Julie Taylor and Neil Brown share their knowledge and experience, examining a range of legal issues arising from social networking, including:

- Employment relationships: employers and employees
- Lawyers and professional obligations
- Intellectual property considerations and challenges
- Privacy in a public sharing society

If you or your clients use social networking sites, this should be an entertaining, informative and enlightening evening, with plenty of time for questions and discussion.

If you have a question or thought for discussion, please email Julie and Neil at the address below, and they will attempt to answer it during the course of the evening.

18:00 for 18:15 - 28th April 2010 - Blandy & Blandy, Reading
Price: £10 This lecture will carry one CPD point
For payment details: bboyoungsolicitorsgroup@gmail.com